

Dear scientist,

Several times I have had a communication with someone who said there is no God. I cannot prove how God came into existence. But it is precisely by recognizing that there is a Holy Spirit that everything else can be explained logically.

The scientist claims that something came into existence out of nothing. There is no scientific evidence that actually proves this. They are all assumptions of the scientists, one assumption follows another, but there is no proof that nothing can become something. In fact, it is so strong that scientists are in complete disagreement with each other about its duration and how it would have originated.

No scientist can prove that nothing becomes something, and that nothing is exactly attuned to each other. As precise as the entire universe and the tangible world proves to be. Planets with very large distances that are so precisely aligned with each other. Our own solar system, all different planets in fixed orbit, cannot be nothing that has become something with such a fixed rhythm, the hand of a Master must be hidden behind it. The only thing science can show is that something becomes nothing. Whatever you put down, if it is not nourished, everything will turn to dust, to the very foundation from which it is made.

Many studies of science are based on fact. When I look at archaeology, geology and astronomy, there are studies that are factual, but there are also points that science cannot prove. We think of the so-called black holes, science makes an assumption that is impossible to prove. No one can see what is happening there at such great distances. No one can determine how many solar systems, planets, etc. are floating around. A small spinning planet that can appear much larger at 1 billion kilometers than a planet four times its size and 3 billion kilometers away.

From a medical point of view, a person can discover a lot. Body cells in which many proteins run on cords, they can even make that visible. But science cannot demonstrate how a body can arise from two cells with all kinds of different bodily functions, they don't get any further than the comment, they are stem cells, it is hidden in there.

Theologians as Scientists.

I have deep respect for the vast majority of scientists, because I view all the factual knowledge they have built up with wonder and admiration. However, I do not understand the shortsightedness of the theologians, because this group claims that the Bible is the only word of God. They also claim that God is the Almighty. This is such a huge discrepancy. How can you say that someone is omnipotent and at the same time limit it to a book that is already 2000 years old. The book is therefore still very incomplete and highly manipulated. I also researched the origin of that book, which you can in Dutch read HERE. This manipulation starts with the first words in the bible. Real scientists study and investigate all possibilities and do not limit themselves to just one book.

Genesis 1:1-2

In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. Now the earth was without form and void, and darkness lay over the deep; and the Spirit of God hovered over the water. '

On this text the theologians - and many believers, especially because the theologians claim so - claim that all creation was twisted together in seven days. Science assumes that the universe is much older than our solar system, and it is true. Our daily rhythm is based on the rotation of the earth in combination with the sun. The time schedule of the Most High must therefore be applicable long before that time and so the earth was not created at the same time as the universe and the days (creation days) are therefore also different from what believers want to claim. A day lasts 49 years with the Most High, so the world was made in 343 years (including the day of rest). God made these 49-year periods known through the jubilant periods in Leviticus 23. No theologian knows what to do with this and they are therefore "forgotten" items.

The period after creation lasted 269.5 million years until Jesus turned water into wine. That was 3920 years after the Fall. 5000 periods of 49,000 years = 269.5 million. The only witness who experienced this as a human being is Adam, he told it to his son Seth and that is recorded in the Gospel of Nicodemus.

Explanation in Dutch: <https://www.debeloofdeschepping.nl/de-eindtijd>

Evolution

It is an established fact that there has been an evolution. Despite the fact that the majority of believers do not want to do this, science has conclusively proven that a development has taken place that lasted millions of years. What science does not know is how long this lasted, which remains an open question to this day. Science is much closer than the theologians (unfortunately the theologians are also called scientists).

A controlled evolution

Through all kinds of excavations, evidence has been found of people up to a maximum length of 13½ meters. Archeology also proves that there was an ice age and a meteorite impact. Have there been creatures like the Neanderthal? Yes, there have been, this is also a proven fact. But the brain power — the mind and free will — did not manifest itself until 6,000 years ago. From that time on, science knows — approximately — about the origin of housing and living communities. The ice age and the meteorite impact have ensured that man as being on this earth can malfunction.

Open the complete timeline here: This timeline starts with the moment that the Christians call the Fall. A moment that occurred a little more than 120 days (5880 years) ago — according to the reckoning of the Most High. This timeline is based on the scriptures, not just the Bible. The Bible is provably incomplete. Compare “my timeline” with the theologians' timeline on Wikipedia Biblical chronology - Wikipedia

In a subsequent epistle I will show you how everything went from the very beginning. That writing contains many more references to various writings, writings that complete the Bible. Should you feel the need to examine the writings in more detail, you can download them for free without having to log in or leave anything: <https://www.debeloofdeschepping.nl/contact/downloads>

I hope this writing gives you food for thought as you have been given that brain mass and free will to investigate.

Yours sincerely,

Rinus Jantz

rinus.jantz@gmail.com

<https://debeloofdeschepping.nl>